Concept Note of the Webinar

Education is fundamental to development of an individual as well as society, so education should never be stopped. In the present situation of Covid - 19 pandemic, the whole world is struggling and is afraid of its future consequences. However, in this situation of anxiety and fear, technology seems to pave the way and is playing a pivotal role in the teaching-learning process and is evident in terms of popularity of the online education across the levels of education. Teaching leaning through technology has been adopted by many educational institutions as a possible solution to the prevalent problem of disconnect between teachers and learners at this time, but still there are many questions regarding this virtual mode of teaching-learning such as; inclusivity of education, accessibility of education, implementing existing commitments of education for all, affective and psychomotor disconnect and whether our system is ready for online learning, and many more which need to be debated upon and answered.

Present webinar is an effort to understand virtual teaching-learning in the light of diverse socio-cultural, psychological, technological and regional contexts of India. It will also attempt to understand policy perspective and grass root realities of virtual education and appropriate ways and means to implement it. The debate will explore the significance of virtual mode in present and post Covid-19 situations.

Part 3: Session wise Details

3.1: Inaugural Session:

The inaugural session started with the welcome address of Prof. Kesang Degi, HoD, Department of Education. Dr. Sumin Prakash has introduced about the webinar and Dr. Vivek Singh, presented the Concept-Note.

In the inaugural session, Hon'ble Vice-Chancellor of the Universality Prof. Saket Kushwaha through lights on how pandemic has affected human life and during this period how online mode of education is becoming an alternative of face-to-face learning. He has also said that in this pandemic it is responsibility of everyone to help the needy ones around us in our community and society.

Keynote speech given by Prof. H.K. Senapati, Director, NCERT, New Delhi, who talked on the policy and practice of online education in a very inspiring and interesting way, and suggested how a teacher could help students in the need of the hour. He said that there are some limitations of e-learning but opportunities are many. He has highlighted the efforts of NCERT and government of India in developing e-resources and its dissemination.

3.2: Plenary Sessions :

Prof. Khagendra Kumar expressed his valuable views on accessibility to learning and accountability of the system successfully. He said that students & teachers are not prepare for this sudden change and raised issues of digital divide. He further said that it is essential and high time to revisit our education system both pedagogically and process wise. Certainly the pandemic has opened a platform to examine and explore the newer possibilities. Online classes may be one way but cannot replace the teacher. However we have to adapt to the newer ways of teaching. Prof. Kumar also emphasised importance of public education system and education should be given top priority.

Professor Anita Rampal expressed her views on education and digital justice: a policy perspective. She said that the teaching is a social procedure and learning: a social activity. The purpose of education is to develop the capabilities that enable young people to both flourish as human beings and participate in society. Mere passing of exams and tests, scoring of high marks does not make a good human being. She has also raised the issues like lack of online materials in regional languages, increased state surveillance, lack of critical pedagogy in online mode of transaction, inequality and its normalization, E-content mainly available in English Language not all regional languages, Privacy issues w.r.t. technology, cost cutting measure of universities and many more.

Prof. Madhu Kushwaha, said the sociological aspects of online education. She said that online education is an alternative in the present situation but the dream of online teaching will not be achieved until all the sections of the society have enough hardware and software available for online teaching. She discussed that brick and mortar universities may be the old reality and new reality will be universities having students accessing online education. She has presented statistics relating to online access in different regions and raised issues of gender differences in access, critical pedagogy, critique of integrated B.Ed. programme, neo-liberalization and its impact on Education.

Prof. Senthilnathan said that Online Teaching is not replacement to classroom or human technology. Technology through online mode has many cons like it is more interactive, smart, engaging etc., we are living in the age of digital technology and it empowers the tools, 3 Apple changes the world. Resolving the gap between digital native learners and digital immigrant teachers, Requirement of transformation in material, method, media and men in the context of online learning, Role of technology in making learning interactive, participatory, engaging, meaningful and joyful, significance of techno pedagogy, Characteristics of digital learners. He said that we are living in the digital age which is full of children called 'digital natives'. Today's students are the quick observers and they are referring Internet for all their doubts. Mere black & white teaching using white chalks and blackboards are meaningless now. He emphasized that today's new media www is not world wide Web but whatever, whenever and wherever; teacher without technology will be replaced by teacher with technology. He said that in the age of digital pedagogy we have to understand digital learners, create digital learning environment, and enhance our capacity to be new generation teachers. Today's learners are visual unlike the yesteryears' auditory learners.

Dr. Joram Begi, briefly highlighted the status of education in Arunachal Pradesh, vision of State government for education, status of online education and it's occurrence in Arunachal Pradesh, significance of online education specially in state and challenges in imparting online education such as electricity problem, network problem, poverty, Rural Urban digital divide. He said that online education is one of the appropriate alternatives in times of lockdown to keep running the education system and emphasized EDUSAT and Swayamprabha initiative of government of Arunachal Pradesh. He said digital literacy is must hence teacher should be trained. He said that Arunachal pradesh is full of biodiversity and natural resources but only by means of education we can explore it and North-East region has the potential to become an important educational hub. Geo-strategic importance of the North Eastern region is also suitable to make it educational hub so that it can open vistas of education to South Asian countries like Myanmar, Cambodia etc.

Prof. Gautam S. Gawali said that how this online education may create a digital divide and fail to address human emotions. He has highlighted that social IQ will get very less emphasis if we blindly focus on online teaching and learning completely. He talked about the importance online mode of in Cognitive Development, but not the overall development of the individual because in this mode the crucial interaction between teacher and student, teacher and parent, and among students is absent. He further suggested that a blended mode of teaching learning is the best approach in Indian circumstances. He has also discussed about psychological aspects of online mode of learning in the light of Multisensory approach, holistic development of learners, Emotional intelligence and wellness.

- 3.3: Technical Sessions / Training Sessions:
- 3.4: Panel Discussion (if any)

3.5: Valedictory Session

Valedictory session started with the address of Pro Vice-Chancellor of the university, Prof. A. Mitra. He highlighted about university initiative in the pandemic situation. Later on Registrar of the university, Prof Tomo Riba has highlighted continuous efforts of the university in this regards. Chief Guest of valedictory session Ms. Niharika Rai, Secretary, Education, Government of Arunachal Pradesh highlighted about state's initiative towards online education such as Swayamprabha channel, and tie-up with All India Radio for folk-tale stories to reach to the learners during this lockdown.
